Copenhagen Business School (CBS) is one of the largest business schools in Northern Europe and the top Business School in Denmark.

It has received EQUIS (European Quality Improvement System) and AMBA (Association for MBAs) accreditation. CBS was established in 1917 by the Danish Society for the Advancement of Business Education (now known as FUHU), which is a private educational institution. In 1965 the business school became integrated as an institution of higher education in the Danish education system.

Today it is regulated by the Danish Universities Act of 2003. CBS is housed in four modern buildings in the Frederiksburg area of Copenhagen, not far from the city center. A part of it is housed in the former Royal Copenhagen Porcelain factory, which has been rebuilt and renovated for CBS. There are currently nearly 16,000 students studying at CBS.

Location

The city of Copenhagen is intimate and peaceful and traces of the past centuries are still visible in its buildings, squares and streets. But Copenhagen has also become an international, dynamic city with a rich cultural, commercial and educational environment. Copenhagen is Denmark's only major city and also the country's capital, with the parliament, government, and monarchy all situated in the heart of the city. Copenhagen is also the centre of an extensive metropolitan area, with a population and workforce transcending local, regional and national boundaries.
